DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-10 are pending in this Application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cheng et al., Cheng hereinafter (US patent number 6,377,666).

Cheng teaches a transceiver unit (fig. 1B) having a transmitter (115) and receiver (117) connected to existing residential wiring (see abstract), where the transmitting section comprising: a line driver (207) for transmitting signal over the existing twisted wires being controlled by a controller (113 in fig. 1B and 201 in figure 2); said controller controlling the power level of the line driver through elements 203 and 205 according to the power level for transmitting the signal, high and low power levels (DLC) as in claims 1,3 and 5.

Further to claims 2, 4 and 8, Cheng also teaches that;

the detection of the power level is determined by the controller once the line circuit is activated (see col. 4, lines 40-50) and reads on the claimed controlling during the initialization of the transceiver in claim 2; the system of Cheng is to accommodate the need of home networking, including computers and printer to share the existing wire line and reads on the claimed specification HPNA in claim 4; and the receiver (117) having a line receiver (209) for receiving signal as in claim 8.

What Cheng fails to teach is that the controller having a comparator (in claims 6 and 7) for comparing the high and low voltage levels with a predetermined threshold value in order to generate the driving high and low power level as in claims 1,5-6.

However, it is obvious to one of an ordinary skill in the art that the controller of Cheng to have a comparator for generating the high and low power to accommodate two modes of operation (see figs 4A and 4B and col. 8) at the time the invention was made.

Response to Amendment

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-8 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Art Unit: 2611

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 9-10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. US patent number adjusting the DC level of a line driver connected to twisted wire.
